

ELLEN VORONOV, MD

Board-Certified in Physiatry

Board-certified in physical medicine and rehabilitation as well as pain medicine, Dr. Voronov emphasizes quality of life and comprehensive care for patients suffering from spine-related disorders. She completed her residency at the Loyola University Chicago. Prior to joining DuPage Medical Group, she practiced outpatient musculoskeletal spine care and pain medicine at M&M Orthopaedics.

One of Dr. Voronov's many clinical interests includes the treatment of chronic pain for patients who suffer from fibromyalgia. Dr. Voronov strongly believes in the importance of a multidisciplinary approach in treating complicated diagnoses such as this debilitating disease. Her treatment plans typically include a combination of physical therapy, medication therapy, psychology, alternative medicine, vitamins, diet modifications, changes of life style, support groups and stress coping techniques. Injection therapy may also be included in the treatment plan if indicated.

Dr. Voronov's skill in physical medicine and rehabilitation includes numerous neurological and musculoskeletal diagnoses. Her successful outcomes result from treating patients for chronic pain by utilizing spinal interventional procedures including epidural lumbar or caudal injections, facet joint injections/medial nerve branch blocks, trigger point injections, dry needle trigger point injections, sacroiliac joint injections, greater occipital nerve block and botulinum toxin/botox injections. Dr. Voronov performs electrodiagnostic studies such as EMG and NCS which are essential for diagnosing nerve and muscle conditions.

Currently, Dr. Voronov is the medical director at Burgess Square Rehabilitation facility. In this role, she oversees patients who are undergoing rehabilitation after general and orthopaedic surgeries, recovering from injuries and rehabilitating from acute and chronic pain conditions. This position allows Dr. Voronov to fully understand all of the aspects and stages of recovery that her patients experience, she is well equipped to manage their expectations and set reasonable goals.

Dr. Voronov is a member of Midwest Pain Society and is affiliated with Elmhurst, Hinsdale and Good Samaritan Hospitals.
