

DALIP PELINKOVIC, MD

Fellowship-Trained Spine Surgeon

Dr. Pelinkovic believes in being available to understand the individual patient and treat their conditions and needs with the least disruptive treatment plan. A board-certified orthopaedic surgeon with fellowship training in spinal surgery, Dr. Pelinkovic includes personal follow-up with each treatment plan to ensure optimal outcomes.

At Johann Wolfgang Goethe University, Dr. Pelinkovic received his medical training education. In addition, he completed his residency at Wayne State University, followed by a fellowship at Rush University in Orthopaedic Spinal Surgery. Dr. Pelinkovic has medical interests in complex cervical spine surgery, minimally invasive surgery, disc replacement, and failed back surgery. He treats conditions such as degenerative disc disease, and performs procedures such as anterior lumbar interbody fusion, lateral interbody fusion microdiscectomy, and posterior lumbar interbody fusion. Dr. Pelinkovic is affiliated with Advocate Good Samaritan Hospital, Edward Hospital, and Elmhurst Memorial Hospital.

In his free time, Dr. Pelinkovic enjoys photography, athletic training, sports, and spending time with his family. Dr. Pelinkovic also has memberships in the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgery, the North American Spine Society, the Illinois State Medical Society, and the DuPage County Medical Society.
